From the Desk of the Alumni Board President

Dear Friends:

It is my distinct honor and privilege to be elected president of the Alumni Board of Directors. I am committed to providing the necessary leadership to fulfill the Board's mission of enhancing the alumni relationships with the College.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank Dick Vallin '59, the outgoing president, for his hard work, dedication, and leadership. During his tenure we made great strides in working with the College through the various alumni committees.

I now challenge all of the alums to become involved with their College. Whether you help recruit a prospective student, assist in placing a graduate in a job, or make a financial contribution, it is very important that we become and stay involved with Saint Joseph's. The success and future of the College does depend on our involvement.

Finally, Homecoming and Parents' Weekend will be held on September 20. Last year our football team went 9 and 2 establishing the College's first winning season in ten years and we expect to continue our winning ways. Plan on attending this year's weekend of activities and support the team while catching up with old friends.

Best Wishes,
Thomas Kuhar '64

Editor's note: Recently, the nation has awakened to the need to renew its commitment to the youth of America. With marching orders from General Colin Powell, The President's Summit for America's Future created new interest in volunteerism and service. However, for some this has always been a way of life.

Joseph Dulin '57 is an educator. He has turned his vocation and belief in the potential of our minority youth into a personal mission of dedication to children and their families.

"Super Principal" to the Rescue

In a society where true heroes and role models are desperately needed to inspire our youth, just call Joseph Dulin a "Super Principal". Dulin isn't faster than a speeding bullet or more powerful than a locomotive, but he can create an atmosphere where kids will learn. He can remove obstacles on the road to success for kids who deserve the opportunity to achieve their dreams.

Dulin is a 39-year veteran of public and private schools. He is the founding president of the National Black Catholic Movement and the first African American lay principal of a Catholic school in this nation.

Joseph Dulin '57,
"Super Principal"

While at Saint Martin DePorres in Detroit, Mich., he practiced strict discipline along with open communication. He also provided his students with the security of a nurturing environment. His students affectionately called him "Daddy Dulin".

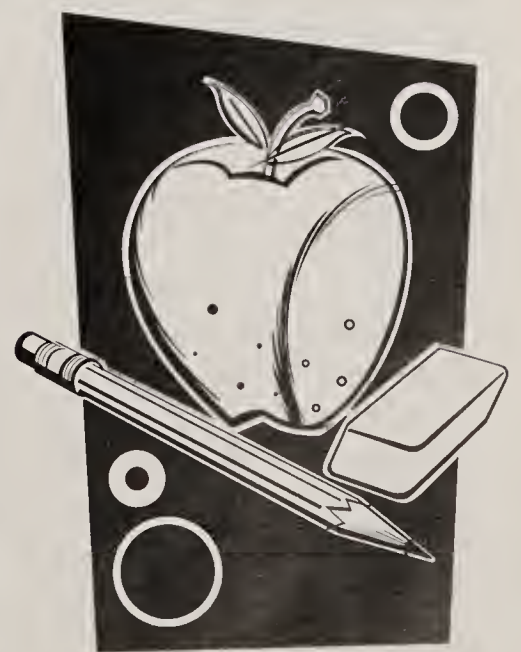

Employing the same approach, Dulin became the founding principal of the Roberto Clemente Student Development Center in Ann Arbor, Mich. Dulin has been at the helm of Clemente for more than 23 years. In the beginning students were banished to Clemente for a variety of sometimes violent offenses. Now, the school is a full-fledged alternative high school which offers a unique educational program for youths in grades 8-12. It has become a school of choice where children, who need extra discipline or help, choose to attend. The students have been referred by counselors, their parents, or they themselves have asked to attend Clemente.

Part of the success of the school is the family atmosphere which Dulin has fostered. He encourages the students to think of school as a second home and creates an environment of trust and respect. Dulin feels that establishing trust will help students realize that high expectations have been placed upon them.

According to Dulin, treating his students as family is an extension of the educational experience he received at Saint Joseph's. "I have always valued the time I spent at Saint Joseph's, it was a family atmosphere and I found a lot of comfort at the College." Dulin stated that his experience at Saint Joseph's helped give him the confidence to become the first African American teacher and basketball coach at Saint Mary's High School in the all-white rural town of West Point, Iowa. "I have said this before and I'll say it again, if I were choosing a college today, I would pick Saint Joseph's again."

Dulin is a "high touch administrator" and his approach is intense. He greets each of the 150 students in the morning with a handshake, hands out his home phone number, and personally delivers report cards to the homes of the students. If a student fails to attend school, Dulin will go to the home and retrieve them. He conducts weekly rap-sessions where he dispenses a dose of "tough love" to the students.

Parents do not escape the educational process either. At least once a semester, parents are required to attend a breakfast meeting at the school. Dulin says that while all parents should be involved in their child's education, African American parents may not feel welcomed in the schools. Many times this attitude goes back to their own childhood and feelings of not being accepted.

While attending the Million Man March in Washington, D.C. in the fall of 1995, Dulin was profoundly touched by the words of an African American teenager who challenged the crowd to go back into their communities and do something to improve the quality of life. "I was so moved by what I heard," stated Dulin. "He inspired me. He challenged me. I thought about what I've done and I thought I had done some good things. But I knew I could do more. I listened. I wouldn't be where I am today if I didn't listen to kids."

Dulin accepted the young man's challenge and armed with the knowledge that parents can make a difference in the education of their children, established National African American Parent Involvement Day (NAAPID). The intent of the annual February observance is to encourage African American parents to attend school with their children and feel welcome.

The first observance was in 1996 and the response was overwhelming. It turned into a multi-cultural event that claimed the attention of the nation. It has created a dialogue among teachers, parents, and students. It is designed to address the serious achievement gap facing African American students.

According to Dulin, "Every parent wants their child to have a better quality of life than they themselves had. It is the American dream; and for many African Americans, this dream has not been realized as a result of their child's failure in school. Education is the key to success and parents are educators' greatest allies."

Dulin is taking his plea for involvement with NAAPID to the college campuses, especially his alma mater. Many minority students represent the first generation in their families to attend college. Parents may not have familiarity or a level of comfort regarding campus life or the educational process. Dulin is asking for college officials, parents, and alumni to reach out to each other and help fill this void. "Parents need to see, feel, and touch the very embodiment of their children's campus life. As a result, parents will be able to share their experiences with the broader African American community. Hopefully this will increase the goals and aspirations of other youngsters and help build a connection between the community and higher education."

Dulin's list of accomplishments is long and distinguished, yet he continues to challenge himself and others. No, Joe Dulin isn't able to leap tall buildings at a single bound. However, he is larger than life to the children and families he touches every day. After all, isn't that the definition of a "super hero"?

Christmas In April

There was no snow on the ground nor a sign of Santa Claus as the Chicago Chapter celebrated with "Christmas In April" on Saturday, April 26. Christmas In April is a Chicago-based nonprofit organization that works to refurbish homes within Chicago's impoverished neighborhoods.

This activity takes place on the last Saturday of April each year. Twenty Pumas worked side by side on a home in the Jackson Street neighborhood, performing projects ranging from painting, plumbing, and cleaning to gardening, electrical repair, and masonry work. Together, the Puma family worked to brighten one man's life and his neighborhood — all in a day's work! Thanks to Tom O'Brien '69 for his coordinating efforts and all who helped to make the day a success.

Students Hammer Habitat for Humanity Into Spring Break

Spring break '97 found many college students migrating to warmer climates for fun in the sun. In contrast, eight Saint Joseph's College students opted to travel to West Virginia to build homes with those in need.

The purpose of the 600 mile trip to South Charleston was to assist the local Mountaineer Habitat for Humanity chapter work on three homes at various stages of construction.

Students dug and poured footers, built a porch, squared walls, hoisted trusses, poured a driveway, and roofed a house. Each student made a $100 donation to the Mountaineer Habitat site, and that money was used to buy building materials. In addition, students from across campus surrendered eating in the cafeteria and donated the money back to the campus habitat chapter to help fund the trip.

According to Megan Kolaczyk '97, from South Bend, Ind., "I felt a great sense of accomplishment giving something back to people who needed my help. I really enjoyed the work, it was physically difficult but I got to operate a backhoe for the first time."

The students also had the opportunity to meet and work with the partner families who will eventually own the homes. "It was the best experience of my life," stated Cheryl Kelley '97 from Mount Prospect, Ill. "The families were so thankful for our help; it was a humbling experience which made me thankful for all the blessings that I have."

Kelley became interested in Habitat for Humanity when she researched a paper for a college course. What she learned prompted her to become involved in the campus chapter of the organization. "This was my first trip, and I wish I had become involved sooner," she stated. "The trip was so inspiring. I had a lot of fun and enjoyed working together as a team on a meaningful project. The experience was empowering, I know that much can be accomplished with hard work and cooperation."

The students also experienced a sobering scene when they witnessed the powerful effects of the recent flooding in the Ohio River Valley. "It was devastating," stated Kolaczyk. "Some people lost everything. The reality of the destruction made me understand and respect the power of Mother Nature."

In addition to Kolaczyk and Kelley, students who made the trip included William Bell '98, Wheatfield, Ind.; Paul Erck '97, Fort Wayne, Ind.; Andrew Hicks '97, Fair Oaks, Ind.; Katherine Jarowicz '99, Chicago, Ill.; Jamie Portal '99, Chicago, Ill.; and Mark Sansone '97, Calumet City, Ill.

The College has participated in spring break habitat trips for a number of years. In the past, students have traveled to Georgia, Mississippi, Florida, Oklahoma, and South Dakota.

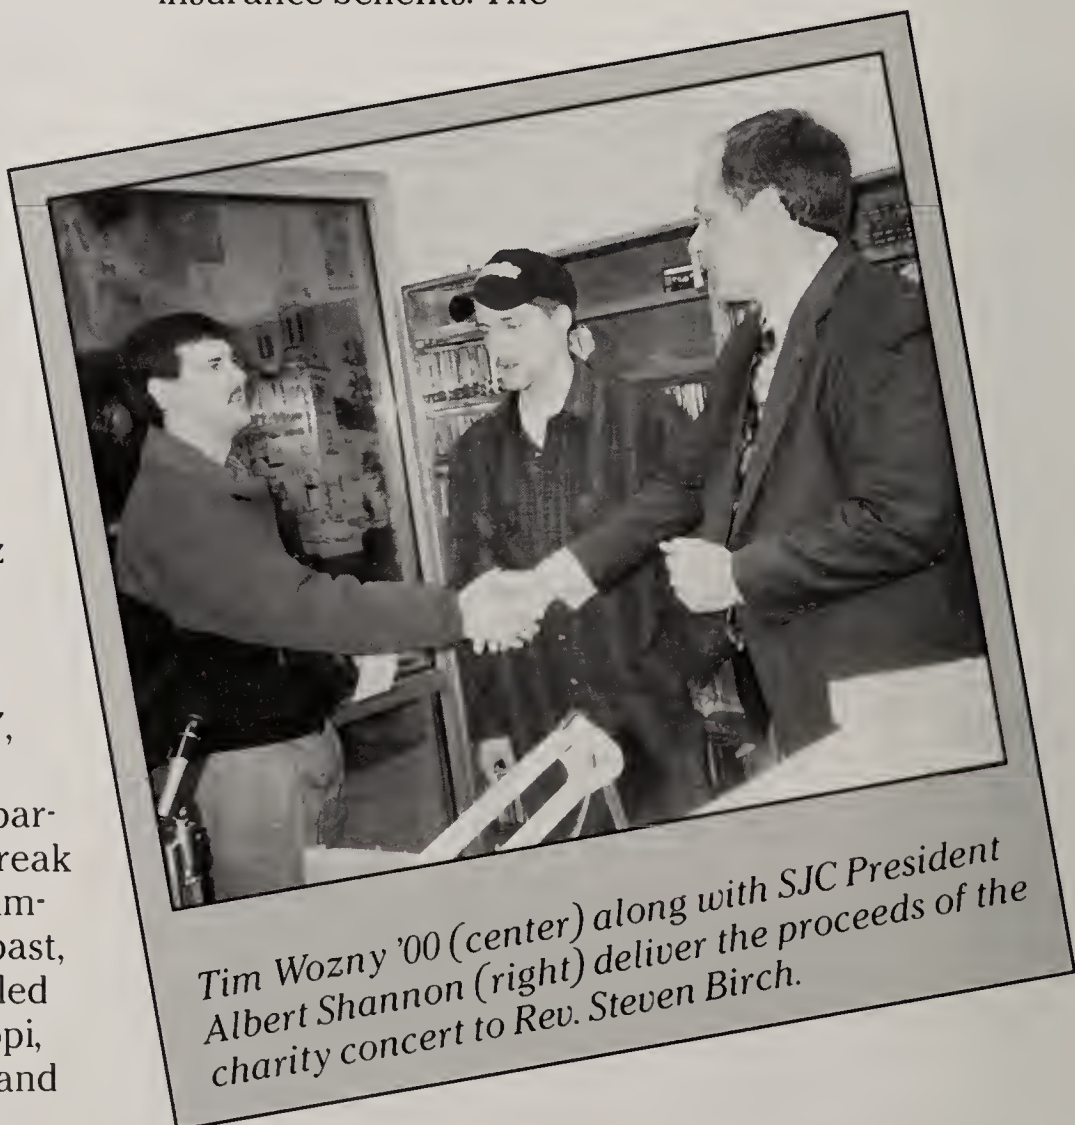

Spreading Love with Rock

Tim Wozny, a freshman from Hammond, Ind., saw plenty of laid-off factory workers as a kid. He also saw how the economic hardship impacted families. In order to make a difference, Wozny organized a benefit concert for the laid-off workers from a local closed factory.

Local businesses, the College, and fellow students all pitched in to assist Wozny assemble his efforts. At the time of the concert, many workers had already exhausted unemployment and insurance benefits. The

"Spreading the Love Benefit" featured four local and regional alternative rock bands.

All proceeds were donated to a local church which distributed the money to needy workers. "I was really pleased that young men and women would desire to help people they don't know", stated Reverend Steven Birch, pastor of the church. "I think it all goes back to what is meaningful in your life. Social responsibility is not an option, it's a commandment. These young people are giving evidence that they believe it in their own lives."

Racing Dentist is Little 500 Grand Marshall

The 34th annual Little 500 Race welcomed Dr. Jack Miller, Indy Racing League, as the grand marshal. Miller, known as the racing dentist, is sponsored by Crest. In addition to Miller's racing career, he is also a dentist with his own private practice and combines his two careers into an educational mission to teach children about dental care.

Miller brought the Crest Mobile Dental Clinic to the Little 500 celebration. It is a 32 foot dental office which pulls a trailer hauling the Crest Racing Car. It is Miller's goal to teach children how to care for their teeth by presenting the subject in an entertaining manner.

He utilizes the excitement of the racing car along with using racing analogies when explaining dental care. "A brush with a real race car seems to get kids revved-up about brushing," explains Miller. Miller hopes that his efforts will help children overcome the fear of visiting the dentist.

Miller placed 20th, from a field of 35, in May of 1997 at the 81st running of the Indianapolis 500.

Checkered Flag Results for Little 500

The 34th annual Little 500 Race along with the 4th annual Alumni Race were held on April 26, 1997. "It was a beautiful weekend," commented alumni race driver and race organizer Bruce Mathew '87. "I was pleased that no one was injured in the races. Also, the student-workers were very cooperative and did a great job; they should be commended."

Fourteen drivers competed in the alumni race. Bruce Mathew '87 won the checkered flag with 45 laps completed in 1 hour on the half-mile track. Finishing in the top five were Chad Healey, second place; Mike Stader '94, third place; Ed Balas '96, fourth place; and Jon Messman '90, fifth place. Also racing were Matt Davy '96, Steve Koos '95, Roger Merriman '73, Tom Messman Jr. '90, Tom Messman Sr. '68, Jason Ostrowski '94, John Plank, Tom P. Stefaniak Jr. '87, and Paul Yeoman '72.

Nine student drivers raced for top honors in the student race. James Wirtes '97 won by lapping the half-mile track 228 times in two hours and forty-five minutes. Finishing out the top five were Peggy McLeish '97, second place; Brad Gellert '98, third place; Bryan Strasburger '97, fourth place; and Sean Shannon '97, fifth place. There were four lead changes and three pit stops during the race. Other participants included Joe Becker '99, Mike Delporte '97, Carrie Edgell '99, and Joseph Vorrier '98. Next year's event is scheduled for April 25, 1998. Mark this date on your calendar and plan to make a pit stop at Little 500.

Dr. Jack Miller served as grand marshal for the 34th running of the Little 500.

Shades of Success

The future is so bright we just have to wear shades. Members of the class of 2001 and College administrators are quite optimistic about the new freshman class. At the time this issue of CONTACT is going to press, the largest freshman class in several years is registered for fall classes.

It's true, the campus is buzzing (yes, a pun is intended) about the

Strengthening Grant Received from Lilly

Lilly Endowment Inc. has awarded Saint Joseph's College a $199,966 grant to strengthen its CORE general education curriculum. In a continuing effort to assist Hoosier private colleges in sustaining quality educational opportunities, the Endowment has recently awarded $2.3 million to 13 Indiana private colleges. The grants are to be used for faculty development, curriculum improvement, and institutional development. Saint Joseph's will utilize the grant to prepare the next generation of faculty leaders to continue the tradition of the CORE general education curriculum.

Most of the grant money will be used to enable faculty to work in teams on a variety of curriculum projects. Money will be allocated to develop the interdisciplinary skills, versatility, and leadership potential of the faculty. Also, a major emphasis will be given to the inclusion of the Christian Humanist world view in academics.

The grant proposal was written by Father Tim McFarland, C.P.P.S., '78, CORE coordinator, and John Nichols, National Endowment for the Humanities distinguished professor. "Achieving the objectives of this project will strengthen the CORE curriculum and through that effort have a substantial impact on the institutional mission, academic life, and campus residential life of Saint Joseph's College," stated McFarland.

The grant will begin in May of 1997 and end in December of 1999.

College Cited in Publication

Smart Parents Guide to College, a new publication listing and discussing the ten most important factors for students and parents to consider when choosing a college, has cited Saint Joseph's College as having a model core curriculum. The College's curriculum was discussed in the chapter entitled "A Curriculum with Coherence" under the sections "Where General Education Works" and "General Education from the Freshman to Senior Year".

The book is authored by the late Ernest L. Boyer, Ph.D. and Paul Boyer, M.A. Ernest Boyer was president of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching. He was a Senior Fellow at the Woodrow Wilson School of Princeton University. He was also a U.S. Commissioner of Education and served on four presidential commissions and received honorary degrees from 130 colleges and universities. Paul Boyer is an education journalist.

The purpose of the book is to furnish parents and students with a set of criteria for choosing a quality college. It also provides advice on how to evaluate schools and details what to search for during a selection process. The publication is organized around ten key criteria of educational quality which include: Getting Ready for College; Clear Writing, Clear Thinking; a Curriculum with Coherence; Finding the Best Teachers; The Creative Classroom; Resources for Learning; Extending the Campus; College Life; Services for Students; and Measuring the Outcomes. The book also includes a list of critical question to ask colleges.

Smart Parents Guide to College is available at major bookstores nationwide and is published by Peterson's.

This year, the Trustees also honored several life members of the Board for their years of dedicated service and continued interest and support after active membership.

The dinner and auction netted approximately $30,000 for the College's scholarship fund. Next year's dinner and auction will be held on April 17, 1998 at the Ritz Carlton Hotel in downtown Chicago.

"Keep on Tracking"

Bill Massoels '89, SJC head track and field coach, has accomplished a rather unique feat in his seven years at Saint Joseph's. He regularly fields nationally ranked teams without having a track. In fact, Saint Joseph's can't even host a meet.

Massoels has established a rather impressive list of achievements along the way. When Massoels took over the program only 19 student-athletes compiled the roster. Now, the program is 93 athletes strong. His teams have been nationally ranked each of the last four years in both the indoor and outdoor polls. They finished the 1996-97 season placing 19th in the nation while competing primarily against Division I schools. The program boasts 28 Academic All-Americans, 48 National Qualifiers, and 4 All-Americans with a total of 9 All-American titles.

What is the success behind the program? Is it the coach? The College? The athletes?

According to those close to the program, it is all of these elements combined.

Massoels admits that he enjoys coaching nationally ranked teams. He states that he will not be satisfied with less and communicates that message candidly to his recruits and athletes. However, he also is quick to state that there is more to college and life than athletics. "I tell my recruits that the order of my priorities are God, family, education, and then athletics," stated Massoels. "I feel that in helping my kids establish life goals and appropriate priorities, they also develop an outstanding work ethic which benefits them individually and in our team efforts. Our success can greatly be attributed to my athletes being focused and well-balanced. I am proud to coach for a college which allows me to focus on these principles."

According to David Hoover '61, dean of enrollment management, Massoels is able to motivate his student athletes to achieve goals. "He is plain talking," states Hoover. "When Bill communicates with his recruits or athletes his message is clear, blunt, always entertaining, and usually inspiring. He demands a lot from his kids, and they will move mountains to deliver."

Bryan Hall '98, who became a first time track and field All-American in 1997, feels that the College and coaching compliment each other. "I have really benefited from my experience at Saint Joseph's," remarked Hall. "I know that Coach Massoels will respect what the College is teaching me through the curriculum and build on those principles with my athletic endeavors."

When asked what makes him smile about the past few years Massoels is quick to relate this story. "In the beginning, we would take a Puma van to the track meets and other schools knew if we came they would not place last. Now we arrive in two charter buses, and the competition knows that the best they might place is second."

What does the future hold and what is on the wish list? For the future, Massoels states that it will be business as usual. "I tell each recruiting class that I want to stay nationally ranked and require their commitment and sacrifice to accomplish that goal. They know that coming into the program." As far as a wish list is concerned, "Obviously, I would love to have a track facility," stated Massoels. "I probably lose 10-15 top recruits each year because we do not have a track, but at least I can boast that I have never been defeated at home."

New Head Football Coach

Puma Football has a new head football coach at the helm for the 1997 season. Tom Riva will replace Brendan Flaherty who led the Pumas to a 9-2 season in 1996. Flaherty resigned to accept an assistant coaching position at Kent State University. Riva will be the 15th head coach in the history of the College.

Riva has served the Pumas as the offensive coordinator for the past two seasons. Prior to joining Saint Joseph's College, Riva was the offensive coordinator line coach at Wayne State University in Detroit, Mich. He received his bachelor's degree from Albion College and his master's degree from Western Kentucky University. Riva has also served as offensive coordinator for the Wolfsburg Bluewings in Germany and tight ends coach for Western Kentucky University.

"I like the way our program is developing and look for good things to continue happening," stated Riva. "It should be an interesting season since we can't sneak up on anyone like we did last year."

SJC will have an eleven game season with eight on the road and three at home. The Pumas will open on August 30 at the University of Indianapolis. The first home game is scheduled for September 20 against West Liberty State College and is also Homecoming and Parents' Weekend.
